popular FASHION placements available through The Philadelphia Center:

Anthropologie, Catalogue Production; Production Intern: Founded in 1992, Anthropologie is run by a small group of people dedicated to bringing the best of other cultures into our own. Our buyers spend well over half the year traveling through Europe, India and the Far East, combing through flea markets, antique shops and estate sales for inspiration. Once we develop a design, we carefully reproduce it in limited quantities for our customers. Everything we sell is exclusive to Anthropologie and unconditionally guaranteed. Anthropologie is a subsidiary of Urban Outfitters, Inc. Urban Outfitters is an innovative specialty retailer and wholesaler. It offers a variety of lifestyle merchandise to highly defined customer niches through 40 Urban Retail stores in the United States, Canada and the United Kingdom; the URBN.com web site; the Urban Outfitter catalog; 38 Anthropologie stores in the United States; an Anthropologie catalog; the Anthropologie.com web site; the Free People store; and a wholesale subsidiary which sells to the Company's retail operations, and to more than 1,300 specialty stores, catalogs and department stores. Production Assistant has the opportunity to work on all aspects of the catalog production process including photo shoot coordination, copy trafficking, and working as a production assistant.

The Career Wardrobe, Boutique Intern: The Career Wardrobe is a non-profit organization empowering women to succeed through providing work appropriate clothing and workshops that educate and inspire. TCW bridges the gap between job training programs and employment by providing free professional clothing and personal development seminars for low-income women. Responsibilities may vary depending on the student's interests and skills. Interns will assist with basic office duties, the dressing program, and following up with donors. Each intern is requested to submit no less than three projects they would like to work on during their internship. TCW staff will choose one of these projects for completing. Additional projects may include: database management, workshop management, fundraising, event management, boutique staffing and inventory management. The intern must be able to work well with women of diverse ethnic and economic backgrounds. Retail experience helpful, but not necessary.

Joan Shepp, Intern: Joan Shepp has been in business for 36 years. It is currently a high-end women's boutique (clothing, accessories, and shoes). The store features American and European designers and vintage designs. The intern will support the Store Manager and tasks may include maintaining the selling environment by merchandising, filling stock, visual enhancement, processing new goods, assisting customers, participating in meeting and fitting sessions, and attend style classes. The intern will observe the daily, behind the scenes, world of urban retail.
